

YOUR FAMILY

Are there any stories about WWI in your family?

Talk to the oldest people you know and see what they remember.

People who were alive at the time of the war would be very old now and there are not too many left alive but there might be some people who were very young children at the time of the war or people who remember stories being passed down.

Maybe there are some letters or photographs too.

You could be the person in your family to start to collect all sorts of family information from the past. The family archivist!
